Classic ringtones mp3 free download

Some people think it's cool to have the latest popular ringtone announcing every cell phone call. Others prefer a cell phone that sounds more like... well, more like a phone. Call me square, but I'm in that second group. I prefer old phone ringtones that remember clunky phones from my childhood. Or better yet, brrring, brrring, brrring hear movies from vintage phones from the 1920s and 1930s. If you share my nostalgia for classic phones, and your carrier allows you to download or install new tunes, check out the antique phone sounds below. To be truly different in a world that desperately tries to be a club and the newest, you have to be square and hopelessly outdated. The best way to be cool is to be so uncool you get out the other side. International Old Phone Ringtones It's a polyphonic MIDI ringtone, so your phone should support that format (some, including BlackBerry phones). They may sound as good as MP3 files in many MIDI compatible models. They are worth trying out if you want your mobile phone to sound like an old-style traditional phone. Whether you're going to have an ancient effect or want to to simulate the ringtone from the TV, they will do the job. 1. Universal Hollywood phone ring You probably recognize this tone from many old TV shows. Classics like Leave It to Beaver and Magnum P.I., along with movies like Ghostbusters, are used as a cellphone screen tune. It is recognizable and functional. [audio wav= [/audio] 2. Classic UK phone ring If you want a European flavor for your classic ringing tons, try this double-tone ring. This sounds a bit more classifying than a standard ring. [audio mp3= [/audio] 3. High-Pitched Retro Ring Looking Not To Miss Vintage Phone Tone? This famous melody will open all the ears nearby. 4. General Retro Ring This One doesn't have a certain phone or era attached to it, but features that classic phone sound nonetheless. [audio mp3= [/audio] 5. Austin Powers/ Our Man Flint Phone Ring Something Here is austin powers tune. Uh so sign up for me for this - Noah Mullin (@nuna144) April 10, 2017 Want to infuse as a pseudo-secret agent? Here's the ringtone that Austin Powers answers. Interestingly, this originally came from the 1966 film Our Man in Flint, which had a similar vibe. [audio mp3= [/audio] 6. 24's CTU tune in Exhibit 24, protagonist Jack Bauer works in the counter-terrorism unit, or CTU. Phones sound a lot in this series, and when they do, hear this sound. [audio mp3= [/audio] 7. Jurassic Park 3 Satellite Tune Who Ever Thought a Tune Can Be Scary? In Jurassic Park, 3 one of the dinosaurs swallows a cell phone. Later, the characters are afraid of being stupid when they turn around and hear the phone ringing---inside dino body. You can send a few people running when they hear this one! [audio mp3= [/audio] 8. Geico Boss's Ring Ding Dong Geico is an interesting advertising king, and one of the company's older spots features a great tune. Gecko's boss shows off his boring tune to a guy talking about how big Geico is, then his phone erupts with the hoppin's beat. It makes a great tune even today. [audio mp3= [/audio] 9. Paul Blart: Mall Cop's Ringtone 2009 Paul Blart: Mall Cop is not the funniest movie you'll ever see, but it contains some laughs. In the movie, Paul Blart buys a cell phone but doesn't know how to change the ringtone. This is determined by Rasheeda's My Gum play when he receives a call, a call, Ridiculously collides with your straight edge good guy vibe. [audio mp3= [/audio] 10. Nokia Tone We end perhaps the most classic mobile ringtone of all. For many people, the Nokia phone was their first cell phone. So, this short tone alerted thousands to their first on-the-go phone call. It's pretty tidy! Nokia has released a mixture of several renditions of this, including piano and dubstep, but the original beep-boop reigns supreme. [audio mp3= [/audio] More Retro ringtones If you haven't found the classic phone tone you're looking for in the list above, don't worry. Beepzoid's vintage phone ringtones page contains more than 60 ringtones for your retro pleasure. Unfortunately, they have generic labels (such as Melody #23) and so it's hard to decipher the exact phones they mimic. We recommend browsing and finding which one you like best. You might consider searching for some of the best ringtones sites as well. How to add a ringtone to your phone Now that you've picked a new retro ringtone, it's time to put it on your phone. Start with finding the favorite above, then right-click it and select Save As. Place it somewhere on your computer for storage. After that, the process varies depending on whether you're using Android or iOS. Android ringtones You have several ways to install a custom ringtone for Android. The easiest way is to use a service, such as Pushbullet, to send files from your desktop to your phone. Or, if you want, you can download the ringtone directly to your phone to completely bypass the desktop. After you download or move them, you'll need to use the File Manager program to move MP3 from the Downloads folder to the Ringtone folder. Everything that is embedded in that folder will appear in the list when you visit &gt; Sound &gt; Ringtone settings. Look there to set your new tone! If you're not using Pushbullet, you can transfer files to your phone using cloud storage. Insert MP3 files into Dropbox, Google Drive or similar service. Then, use the phone app to export the files to the Downloads or Ringtone folder. From there, follow the same procedure as above. Finally, to do this in the old school way, connect the USB cable from your phone to your computer. To move MP3 files directly to your phone's ringtone folder, use the File Explorer or Switch window. You can then assign one through the settings menu. iPhone ringtones Unfortunately, assigning ringtones to iOS is a huge pain and requires you to jump through multiple arcs of iTunes. We've written a detailed guide on how to create an iPhone ringtone to check for all the action. What is your new ringtone? Many people your favorite soundtrack or song in your movie as your ringtone.
